3. Object Code Incorporating Material from Header Files

The object code form of a library may incorporate material from a header file that is part of the Library. You may choose to provide such material in the form of object code under terms of your choice, provided that, if the material is a run-time library, it is not limited to numerical or small macros, inline functions and templates (ten or fewer in the total source code files) and both of the following:

- a) Give prominent notice by each distribution of the object code that the Library is used in it and that the Library is covered by this License.
- b) Accompany the object code with the GNU GPL and this license document.

4. Combined Works

You may convey a Combined Work in either source or object code form. If you choose to convey it in source code form, you must effectively do not restrict recipients from conveying the Combined Work and revealing the source code of the Combined Work, and you must also do each of the following:

- a) Give prominent notice by each distribution of the Combined Work that the Library is used in it and that the Library is covered by this License.
- b) Accompany the Combined Work with the GNU GPL and this license document.
- c) For a Combined Work that the copyright notice of the Combined Work is the copyright notice of the Library, include the copyright notice of the Library, as well as a reference directing to the source code of the Library.
- d) Do one of the following:
  - 0) Convey the Combined Work in source code form, under the terms of this License, and the GNU GPL for the Combined Work, and under the terms of the GNU GPL for the Application Code, and under the terms of the GNU GPL for the Application Code.
  - 1) Use a suitable mechanism for linking with the Library. A suitable mechanism must use at run time a copy of the Library already installed on the user's computer system, and (b) will produce a Combined Work that is interface-compatible with the Library.
- e) Provide Installation Information, and provide such information in a form that such information can be used to install and execute a modified version of the Combined Work.
