Re: '<<name of Work>>' of author>> ('Author')

Dear <<name>>,

I am the author of the Work.

[The Author asserts the Author's name on the title page and cover in the following form '<<name of author>>' and the Publisher undertakes to comply with such requirements to honour this right. The Author agrees that any infringement by the Publisher or by any third party to do so shall constitute an infringement of this right and in the event of any such infringement the Author shall not seek injunctive relief and the sole remedy shall be a claim for damages.]

The Author acknowledges that the Publisher to have the right to make corrections and conform the text to the style and also for the purpose of authorising translations of the Work in any material which might, in the opinion of the Publisher, be acceptable without damage to the Publisher's reputation or business interests and for the purposes of complying with the advice of the Publisher's legal advisers and for the exercise by the Publisher of its rights shall not be capable of being considered as a derogation or derogatory treatment of the Work.]

of the Work in order to make corrections and conform the text to the style and also for the purpose of authorising translations of the Work in any material which might, in the opinion of the Publisher, be acceptable without damage to the Publisher's reputation or business interests and for the purposes of complying with the advice of the Publisher's legal advisers and for the exercise by the Publisher of its rights shall not be capable of being considered as a derogation or derogatory treatment of the Work.]

OR

[The Author irrevocably and unconditionally assigns to the Publisher all the rights to which the Author may be entitled pursuant to Sections [77] of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 and any other moral rights provided by law now or in future in force in any part of the world in relation to the Work and its licensees of the Work.]

of the Work in order to make corrections and conform the text to the style and also for the purpose of authorising translations of the Work in any material which might, in the opinion of the Publisher, be acceptable without damage to the Publisher's reputation or business interests and for the purposes of complying with the advice of the Publisher's legal advisers and for the exercise by the Publisher of its rights shall not be capable of being considered as a derogation or derogatory treatment of the Work.]

Yours faithfully,
